SOME DOORS slide, some doors swing, some push, some pull; but you never know what awaits you on the other side. Your future lies there, sometimes success, sometimes failure; but you are always moving on through new doors of knowledge, faith, and achievement.

There are doors you see every day and take for granted, never realizing the opportunities that may lie behind them. Some doors may be passed through easily, but these are the doors of little value. Others present the challenge of hard work; but when once passed through, you will realize the fulfillment of your dreams.

Dearest Kathy -
you will always be one of my fondest Garfield memories. I have come to admire and respect your brains and sweet personality which has kept me company and given me some badly needed companionship through the years. Your future is certainly bright, holding many things that will give you happiness - I surely hope so. Let's keep in touch and not let this be the end of our friendship

Dear Katherine,
 "Fairfield High, our Alma Mater..." It's finally time for us to graduate. Isn't that something?
 We, here we are, through junior High School and now Senior High. All the pictures on this page sure bring about a few memories for a to remember in our maturer age. Time sure does fly. Well, to stop reminiscing awhile I'd like to wish you lots and lots of luck and happiness for the future years. Always,

Dear Kathy,

We've had such a wonderful year, it's kind of hard to write down all the things I want to say. We are going our different paths, and we might never see each other again. I know that you will do whatever you decide on, and you'll do it well. I have the greatest confidence in your success, so Kathy, you can't fail.

Maybe sometime you can find time to write me. You know, Mary and I promised that we would keep up our friendship, but she got too busy, I guess. I wonder, will you too get too busy to write to your old pal, who'll be thinking of you often?

Love,

FACULTY

IN SOME schools, teachers are considered an abnormal order of homo-sapiens. This high school, however, completely disproves the insinuation. Garfield faculty members usually monopolize the adult seating section during various sporting events. Aside from this criticism, James A. instructors are very co-operative. Purple and White Day reveals the finest violet attire of many a teacher. The Garfield student body is proud of her faculty, both as pedagogues and understanding companions.

THOUGH the activities of a club may take its members on an imaginary cruise to countries afar, on a real trip halfway to Renton, or only as far as room 106, home base for all is Garfield.

The morning bulletin usually sings the praises of several interest clubs, advertising meetings, guest speakers, films, or refreshments. Posters are sometimes included in the colorful propaganda, designed to attract students to clubs meetings and membership.

Once a year, on the eve of Back to School Night, the club members set up shop in room 231. At this time, every available artistic scheme and inch of space is employed to display items symbolic of their clubs, including everything from slide rules to dangling fish.

BOYS'

BETWEEN elongated President Smart and diminutive Advisor Cribley, we find two middle-sized lads, Vice-President Joey Mayo, and keeper of the archives, Ronnie Saul. The officers, along with the other male students at Garfield, constitute the Boys' Club.

"Your car just rolled into the Bulldog," gleefully reports a member of the Auto Committee. Anything with four wheels is under the supervision of this society. It is their duty to register all cars driven by the students and be on the lookout for vehicle mishaps.

NEITHER rain, sleet, nor snow can halt the faithful members of the Advisory Board, which is composed of twelve sturdy boys who are often found furiously munching their noontime meal while indulging in a brisk walk about the surrounding community. Although their faces appear nonchalant, and the exercise merely a passing whim, each member is carrying out an important duty of the Advisory Board.

Of course, patrolling is only half the story. While all violations against the school are reported, this counseling group also tries to help the fellow student who is a trifle wary of stepping into maturity.

GIRLS'

"HAVE you seen Miss Bell?" queries an anxious Girls' Clubber, peering into the controlled confusion of the Girls' Club Office. The G.C.O., usually penetrated only by the muffled tap of the typewriter or the whispering of girls, can hum with activity like a miniature Times Square when a particular situation arises.

CLUB

GIRLS of all religious and racial groups participate in Girls' Club work. The problems that confront this organization are not those of prejudice and intolerance. Instead, the crisis at hand often evolves around questions such as, "Whatever became of the purple crepe paper?" "How will we possibly find time to get the bulletin board decorated?" "Where is Miss Bell?"

To a stranger, the G.C.O. might seem a bit confusing, but the problems are usually solved and Miss Bell found. Then before the day is over, peace is again restored to "middy haven," the G.C.O.

INTERHIGH COUNCIL

ONCE A MONTH, the main office of the Seattle public schools becomes a scene of buzzing activity as the delegates of Inter-High Council convene. The worries of homework and sports' rivalries are forgotten by the students as they puzzle over the common problems of law-enforcement, school sportsmanship, and traffic safety.

With officers and executive committee members from all eight high schools, the Inter-High Council is almost entirely student-planned and run. The council is divided into several committees, which work on separate projects before reporting their shining accomplishments to the whole Inter-High Council.

The most outstanding project of the council is the annual All-City song and yell leaders' conference.

QUIET, STUDENT COUNCIL AT WORK!

STUDENT COUNCIL

EACH Friday, the hour from 12:00 to 1:00 is a time of great activity in Mr. Maxey's room. The chairs sprout many more legs; arms and elbows dangle on the table tops, and numerous brows furrow in thought. It is a scene of deepest concentration; it is student council meeting time.

The purpose of this vital body is to control the overall student activity program. Many ideas for school projects first come into the light of day during student council meetings. After discussing all of them thoroughly, the members of the council decide which to present to the student body.

Order reigns supreme at student council, and during meetings these junior parliamentarians execute their duties with dignity and efficiency.

Best wishes and lots of luck
in the future years to come. Sincerely
Walt

INTERCLUB COUNCIL

THE main aim of the Interclub Council is to publicize club projects and encourage student participation in them. Composed of a representative from every school club, the council meets once each month to discuss general plans and ideas. The main project thus far in the short history of the council has been to provide interest booths for display on Back-to-School Night.

Early in November, sounds of flying hammers and crunching saws echoed from room 231, as student handymen constructed the display booths. Then, the project was taken over by the Interclub Council, whose members hurriedly turned 231 into a room of crepe paper, glittering lights, and displays of all sorts and descriptions.

The project was quite successful in that most parents left Back-to-School Night, knowing not only how Johnny is doing but how Johnny's club is developing Johnny.

EVERY other Wednesday the members of Purple Paw convene, huddled among egg salad sandwiches, potato chips, and milk bottles. The time is "high noon," a fact which accounts for the resemblance room 104 bears to the cafeteria.

Amid this atmosphere of friendship and food, the Purple Paws discuss their projects and ideas. Helping the Seattle Deaf School has been the main project of the club during this past year.

The thrill of giving was experienced by all the Purple Paws who visited the deaf school, where they saw the enthusiastic young pupils experience the thrill of receiving.

The male population of Garfield also has a service club. Established in 1949, the Bulldog Club has long been contributing to the success of numerous school functions. After six years of upholding their fine reputation, the Bulldogs are steeped in tradition as old as the familiar club sweaters they wear.

IN GARFIELD, the word "production" holds a twofold definition. There are those who prefer to stride "center stage" spotlighted amid loud applause.

These premature Bernhardt's and Barrymores, with faces resplendent with grease paint and lines carefully memorized, parade to and fro before the footlights. Meanwhile, throughout the auditorium, friends and proud parents nod in approval as they gaze fondly upon the "many stars" of the show.

On the other hand, a student may choose to present his creative talent in a less spectacular fashion. The fellow who had previously buried his thoughts beneath chemistry formulas, may sometime be impelled to express his inner love for "sweet peas in springtime." Thus, after several weeks of pounding the Underwood, his finished product may finally appear in one of Garfield's literary publications.

THE PLAY was a huge success. The auditorium rang with laughing and clapping of entertained audiences, and the actors responded with equal enthusiasm, embellishing their performances with several incidents the author never foresaw.

Saturday night's performances ended with a bang, as someone lit a match to Day Seymour's collection of firecrackers.

MID-WINTER CONCERT

EACH year, the musically inclined individuals of Garfield join ranks in presenting a school concert. Held in the midst of the Christmas season, this musical performance combines the talents of the light-footed and the strong-voiced.

Usually, these annual programs produce several unforeseen developments. This year's production followed tradition. An extra twirl in "Siboney" and loss of balance due to a misplaced arch support were only a few of these.

Nevertheless, the Mid-Winter Concert mastered all its embarrassing situations, and emerged triumphant.

OPERETTA

IN THE spring a student's fancy usually turns to love. However, as the school year settled itself happily amongst the flowers of a productive April, the third period congregation of room 309 turned to musical comedy. At this time, the Selected Chorus, lead by the rhymical arms of Mr. Cook, prepared for the Operetta. This year the vocalizing was dedicated to the melodies of three Broadway shows: "The Student Prince", "Brigadoon", and "Oklahoma". Choir members discarded the blue robe and starched white collar and costumed themselves in the apparel of the Heidelburger, Highlander, and American cowpoke. The Operetta not only supplied its audience with an abundance of color and memorable song, but also added a final touch to the series of successful productions Garfield has presented during 1955.

THE DRUMS go bang, the cymbals clang, and the whole third floor annex quivers, as the Garfield band pours forth strains of lively music.

Lately the noble efforts of the band have resulted in more music and less clatter as director Johnston's able musicians have spent hours in room 310, faithfully slaving over their music stands.

Recognized again this year as one of Seattle's leading high school musical aggregations, the band will don full purple and white regalia to march in the Wenatchee Apple Blossom Festival parade.

Kathy, you are one of the sweetest girls in the Senior Health Ed. class. It's been great living in with you. Stay nice always! -

ORCHESTRA

THE MUSIC goes 'round and 'round and it comes out of room 316 each third period, when the music room is occupied by the youthful musicians of the Garfield orchestra.

The orchestra is altogether unlike any other school instrumental group. Orchestra personnel wear dress clothes and their repertoire consists of more Strauss than swing or Sousa.

The orchestra, though capable, entertains less often than most of the other musical groups, and the sight of Director Johnston with baton raised over the string section is a welcome one.

LOG-A-RHYTHMS

IT WAS a chilly March evening when the S.S. James A. disembarked from her moorings. As the mighty vessel plowed through the high ocean waves, a seaworthy mariner began his evening jaunt about the deck. Assured that all was well with Old Ironsides, the seadog settled down upon a handy life preserver and proceeded to thumb through the James A's log. Thus, on March 17, 18, and 19, Garfield's 1955 Funfest was introduced to enthusiastic spectators. The student-studded production based its theme upon the record of various oceanic encounters, as found in the log of a fabulous ship.

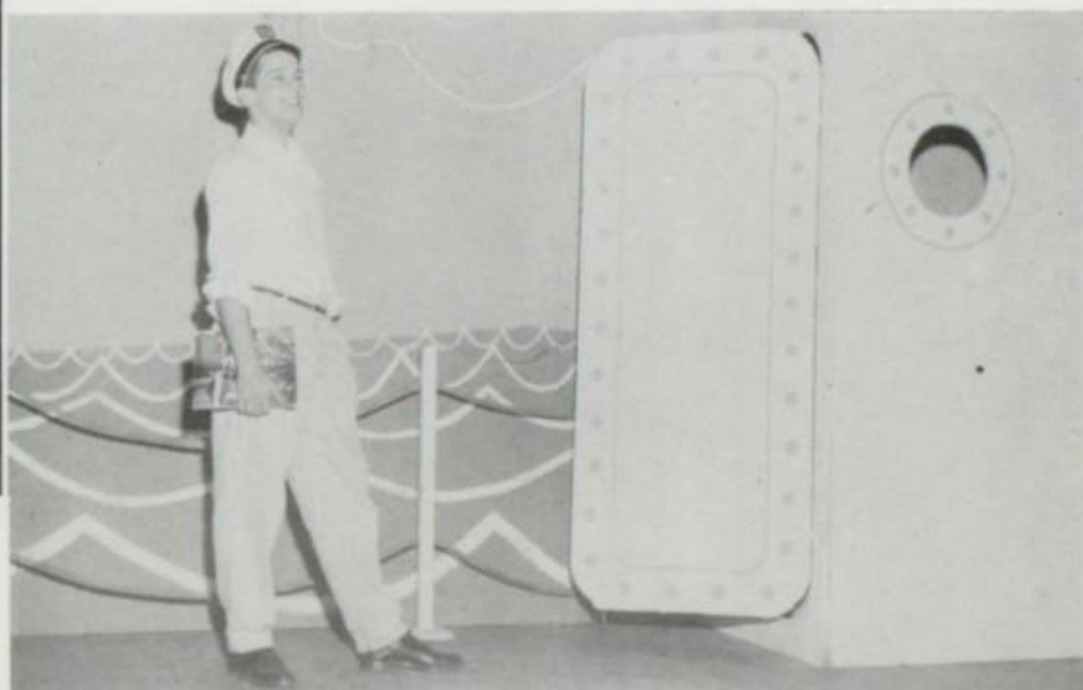

The jolly mariner peered into the pages of past history, and discovered a throat-splitting tale of blood-thirsty pirates who attacked the S.S. James A. while she sailed one of the Seven Seas. However, the nautical record also contained a collection of current earth-shaking events. A few months previous to the Funfest, the popular commentator, Edward R. Mumble, was broadcasting his television show aboard this famous steamship. Here, an attempt was made to set the world's record for deep-sea diving. Several water-loving individuals risked their lives to roam the depths in a bathosphere, an invention of modern-day scientists.

When the S.S. James A. finally pulled up anchor, she had recorded another adventure of extraordinary events in her log.

THE SHOW IS PRESENTED

Dear Cathy,
 Well, after all these years of school, were finally getting out. In a way I'm glad yet I'm not happy. It's been wonderful going to school with you all these years and eating lunch with you at our table.
 We really have had a successful year. I hope your years to come are as successful as our senior year has been.

WORKING feverishly behind the scenes in capacities unknown to audiences were the three Funfest committees.

This trio, working in assembly-line fashion, literally made the Funfest. First, the all-important planning was done by the members of the main committee, who combined wits to produce and develop a seaworthy theme — Log-A-Rhythms. Then, construction of the S.S. James A. was navigated through the energetic efforts of the stage crew, whose members constructed the various props which added to Garfield's oceanic atmosphere. The other contributing committee, composed entirely of youthful make-up artists, had the pleasant duty of applying greasepaint and mascara to the faces of the many eager members of our all-star cast.

ARROW STAFF

ONE OF Garfield's many Language Arts rooms rejoices under a big, blue sign reading Arrow Office. The room itself resembles any other classroom in Garfield, but behind its shuttered windows a staff works furiously.

Arrow is one class in which individuality is not insisted upon, and conferences are always in order. The staff members usually work in small groups, in corners of the room, at long tables, or over the advisor's desk. Their buzz sessions include such pertinent matters as whether or not to use a tomato soup colored cover on the annual, how on earth to stick to a photographic schedule when it rains outside, or how the staff can make more and spend less money.

Sometimes, especially around the time of a deadline, the staff can not only be seen but heard in action. With seemingly dozens of projects in progress, the sounds range from audible hum to energetic babble as the typists plink out long lists of material, the sportswriters shuffle through stacks of action pictures, and the copy editors rack their brains and thesauruses for adjectives.

The Arrow makes its public appearance on Purple White Day, when it is eagerly pounced upon by an admiring student body. Then it is carried around by almost every student at Garfield, being eagerly exchanged and scribbled in, until by the end of the school term, every Arrow owner is wished enough good luck to last a lifetime.

FALL PEN

SPRING PEN

EACH DAY, at Garfield High School, when the hands of the various time pieces approach 2:15 p.m., sixth period bursts into existence. In Room 210 a unique order of business is at hand. Here, seated at long, yellow tables are the members of the Pen staff. These individuals, aided only by a editor and faculty advisor, spend the remaining fifty minutes buried in a maelstrom of manuscripts. The Pen, appearing semi-annually, is truly Garfield's creative masterpiece. Gathered between the bindings of this publication are the poems, essays, and miniature novels of many young quill-drivers. After creating phrases of great promise, these students may deposit their compositions in the mailbox adjacent to Room 210 or within the grey folders which decorate language arts classes.

Since the hidden incentive of the Garfield Pen is to develop the writing technique of the high school student, nothing so pleases a youthful author as to read his personal contribution in a widely circulated magazine.

FALL "MESS"

AMONG the busiest of Garfieldites are the industrious young members of the "Mess" staff.

Positions on the Messenger are filled by recruits from the journalism classes. These students are the most outstanding of the many who aspire association with Garfield's undisputed weekly word.

Though a staff member may possess many qualities, the most vital assets are talent and a free fourth period, the latter being the time of day, when newspaper personnel in 209 are engaged in "Mess" production. However, their activities are not always carried on behind the steel bars of headquarters. Familiar sights are such items as the geometrically shaped piece of plywood over which a layout technician hovers, measuring and mumbling; the swiftly scribbling pencil which accompanies the eternal questions of a reporter; or the angular black contraption which a photographer feeds with rolls of film, and dark, rectangular slices of celluloid.

FALL "MESS"

THE FINISHED product of everyone's labors, four gleaming pages of newsprint and pictures, has received several impressive honors and awards, but none to match the welcome it receives every Friday afternoon. The Messenger is subscribed to or anxiously grabbed by all activity card holders. The first reading of an issue usually takes a student from two to six minutes, and includes the most popular columns which relates chummy greetings from the editor, accounts of featured friends, comments by the coach, student polls on vital and imaginary issues, or interviews of anyone from "Miss Forward Motion" to the Easter Bunny. News articles are often skimmed over and put aside, to be later perched atop a lapful of books and read while busses and students lurch homeward.

But even before one issue has been completely read, another one is being planned by a staff which hopes to make each issue a bigger and better "Mess" than the last.

At noontime, the Garfield gladiators recline on the radiators in the front hall where their egos are boosted by admiring young ladies.

SONGSTERS and YELL LEADERS

THIS YEAR Garfield was blessed with an unusually successful sporting season. Amongst the many "pats on the back" received, the student body was rarely excluded. "Without your support we never could have done it," rang familiar in the ears of satisfied Garfieldites. However, throughout the year, the spirit of such a large group required organization and unity. It was here that the song and yell leaders played a most important role. These enthusiastic rooting directors were always ready with waving pom-poms or a tricky routine, as crucial games reached that, "Oh, I can't stand to watch it," portion.

But, the year's football contests and tournament triumphs have come to an end. Purple skirts and white sweaters have been carefully stored away. Nevertheless, the wearers of these garments, as well as their schoolmates, will long remember 1955: the year Garfield refused to accept anything less than absolute victory.

THE BULLDOG eleven marched onto the field of battle a quiet, underrated team. They quickly, but modestly, proceeded to knock over the Cleveland, Roosevelt, Queen Anne, and West Seattle squads. Running against bad weather, and worse luck, the Bulldogs lost their only game of the season to a rough, tough, Ballard crew. The Ballard loss, however, failed to wipe out the Bulldog spirit. It was a determined Garfield team that went on to their first City Championship in sixteen years, downing Lincoln and Franklin both in the few final minutes of play.

Along with the City Championship also came the honor to play in the Turkey Day Game. The opponents were a hard charging squad from Kent-Meridian, Puget Sound champions. As the final gun sounded that Thanksgiving Day, bringing the "54" football season to a close, a glance at the scoreboard portrayed the fighting spirit of both teams . . . Garfield 14, Kent-Meridian 14.

CLIMAXING the most successful season in Garfield's basketball history, the Bulldogs defeated the O'Dea Irish for the State Championship. O'Dea went the way of three other highly touted tournament entries as the determination of the Bulldogs proved unbeatable.

A rocking road led to the tournament, for the seven other Seattle high schools set out to master Garfield. The Lincoln Lynx found the key, and edged out the Purple and Whites by a whisper in the first league clash of the two teams this year. However, the loss served as a revitalizer, and the Bulldogs did not lose again. In the next meeting of the two teams, Lincoln fell before the tremendous will to win displayed by the Garfield squad. Garfield and Lincoln were declared City Co-Champions, and both teams went to the tournament. Lincoln was defeated in the quarter-finals by O'Dea, and finished in seventh place.

DOUBLE PLAY ON THE WAY

QUOTE . . . Coach Dzurich, "We got off to a good start at the beginning of the season. John Smith and Bob Krisologo led the league in hitting, which was a big factor in our success. The pace got hotter and we sagged to fourth place, but not without some very good showings. Ira Oakes and Autrey Glass were chosen All-City, and Oakes and Warren Holtz played in the City vs. State Game." ZOOM! . . . Boasting a predominantly junior lineup the Bulldogs showed their teeth from the start. Defying the opinions of the "experts," the Garfield squad ended up the first round of play in second place, winning four games while losing but two. The team in first place was Cleveland whom the Bulldogs never had the satisfaction of playing. In the second half of the season difficulties arose which must occasionally hinder any good team, and Garfield wound up the season in a four-way tie for fourth place. There will be eight lettermen returning for the '55 campaign which points to a bright future in baseball for Garfield.

TENNIS

CITY CHAMPIONS

EXPERIENCE was the keynote of the 1954 tennis season. With six returning lettermen, the Bulldog squad, under the watchful eye of coach John Maxey, stormed through the season downing challenger after challenger.

At the completion of the regular season's play, the Pups were at the top of the stack, having won all seven of their scheduled matches. Garfield had won its first tennis championship in 12 years.

"Having worked with these boys since they were Sophomores, I found that they were all especially talented in tennis skill," stated coach Maxey. "The boys were good competitors, good sports, and clean cut fellows."

Following the regular season came the All-City matches. Larry Newman, Garfield High, brought back the singles crown, to add further to a successful season.

TRACK

A COMBINED group of Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors comprised the 1954 track squad.

With too few returning lettermen, the squad was lacking experience. However, experience is not all that makes a team. The '54 squad romped onto the field of battle as a highly spirited team. Organization and teamwork made up for what was lacking. Although the squad did not win the city championship it will be regarded as one of the finest Garfield teams to enter the field of competition.

In the words of Coach "Swede" Lindquist, "If spirit could win first places, Garfield would have been on top of the league. The boys, however, made a fair showing, finishing fifth in the relay carnival and dropping to seventh in the all-city meet. The true measurement of a team is not how many meets they win or lose, but in the sportsmanship and spirit displayed."

SIX RETURNING lettermen bolstered the Garfield golf squad, which finished fourth in a very strong league. Proof of the quality of the competition among the city linksmen was found in the score required for qualification in the All-City meet. A maximum count of 76 strokes for sixteen holes was required in '54 while the year previous 86 was good enough. Garfield's Bruce McDonald placed fourth in the All-City meet. Two of the closest matches of the season were with Lincoln and Roosevelt. Both contests had thirteen to eleven scores, with the Bulldogs beating the Lynx while losing to the Teddies.

G CLUB

WITH a new advisor and capable officers, the G Club began its fully scheduled year. Besides developing skill in sports and gaining experience in sportsmanship, these girls have engaged in such projects as marching for half-time football games, planning a "Get Acquainted" mixer with the Girls' Club, and selling Bulldog decals. One of the events which many girls looked forward to was the All-City brunch held at West Seattle High School.

ALL GIRLS participating in after-school sports are eligible for membership in the G Club. Girls may acquire points by turning out for their choice of sports during the different seasons. For each sport a girl attends faithfully, she receives 100 points a quarter. By accumulating points in this manner, she will reach 500 points and be awarded her chevron and a letter "G". Each additional 500 points will aid in obtaining another chevron. This extra-curricular activity develops sportsmanship and skill and promotes healthy minds and bodies.

At the end of the year a certificate is awarded to each girl who has fulfilled the requirement of wearing regulation every Wednesday. Also, the girls take time to elect their next year's officers and nominate a girl who has inspired them by her actions and contributions toward the club.

GIRLS'

Planning successful social functions has been the major aim of the committee heads. These chairmen have organized their groups so that efficiency has been maintained and original ideas have been employed.

Bowling, held every Monday at Main Bowl, was a popular sport with many girls. An instructor coached the girls on proper muscle co-ordination and deliverance of the ball. The girls found that with practice and patience, the scores began to improve.

Hiking began with the annual corn roast at Lake Washington. The girls were eager to start on other hikes; therefore, the managers planned trips to interesting spots such as the Coca Cola factory and Gai's Bakery.

Swimming was held in connection with the Central Y.W.C.A. The beginner's used basic strokes to master this aquatic sport while the superior mermaids learned to dive.

Baseball, the last sport of the season, began in early spring. The girls were organized into teams and fast moving games commenced. This popular diamond sport helps to further develop the spirit of friendship among the members.

After receiving her chevron and "G" a new member is faced with initiation.

SPORTS

Newly accepted members of "G" Club are due for their period of emersion after they have accomplished the phase of initiation. Rolling peanuts with noses, and devouring crackers while whistling are only a few of the stunts which must be executed.

Ping pong is an all-year sport offered only to Freshmen and Sophomores, since they are ineligible for badminton. This sport was held twice a week because of the great interest shown by many girls.

Badminton, offered to Juniors and Seniors exclusively, was held twice a week because of the enthusiasm shown for this particular sport. The girls were able to develop skill in serving and slams.

Volley-Tennis was one of the first sports offered in the fall. Signs of teamwork were shown within the first few weeks of school. The winning team was awarded with a plaque inscribed with all their names.

Basketball, which is a winter sport, began with the eager excitement of many. Teams were organized and members were soon practicing their hook shots, foul shots, lay-in and set shots.

WITH QUERIES of, "Is my necktie straight?" "are my pearls the right length?" or "can you lend me a comb?" the procession began. Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors, and even the faculty climbed the winding stairs. On and on they came in masses, which turned to crowds and then groups, as a deep voice within room 322 instructed, "Smile, turn right, smile, turn left, smile." But the ordeal was finally completed, everyone had his picture taken, and the photographer folded his black tent and quietly stole away.

SOPHOMORES

THE sophomores are no longer content with stumbling into the the wrong classrooms. Instead of becoming misplaced along the huge corridors of their school, they have decided to take a giant stride toward maturity.

These students deserve even more praise, since only a few are "old hands" at the business of high school procedure. This year, Garfield heard the clatter of 898 more feet, as it was descended upon by 300 new inhabitants from the junior high schools.

SENIORS

HOORAY for the Seniors!

Since entering Garfield they have filled out stacks and stacks of informative cards for the office, the counselor, the home room record, the nurse, and on and on ad infinitum. Cards of all colors, sizes and varieties have felt the marks of their pencils as they filled in information, name, roll, program of classes, and finally graduation date, June, 1955. Once it seemed doubtful that the far-off date would ever arrive, but now it is here.

Their senior year has been their biggest, and they have celebrated it by reviving that long dormant spirit of old, the Spirit of Garfield. Of course they've worked hard, but the seniors have spent a fair amount of this last year's time immersed in extra projects. Their time-consuming activities have ranged in importance from making a big night of the senior prom to just enjoying life at Garfield, feeling important, being seniors.

Dear Kathy,

TOP TEN

Dear Kathy,
 sure is to you
 as good as you are. But I hope you comes to a class & I will know what to say.
 I wish you all the luck in the world. I hope that everything turns out fine.
 I'm sorry I won't get to have you as my friend.
 Love,
 Margaret Stodges

Kathy,
 Go A head read girl with a sweet personality. That's what I want the best of luck, but I can't do it without hammm
 I hope you
 I hope you
 I hope you

Dear Kathy,
 It really is a pleasure to write in your book. You are one of my favorite people. I'm sure that with your quiet ways and kindly personality you will make many friends wherever you go.
 I wish you all luck and happiness. You deserve the very best.

Love,
 Margaret

Dear Kathy,

Here we are at the end of our senior year and our good times together in Mr. Wilson's room. It really has been fun getting to know you this past semester for you really are a great girl. I hope I will ~~see~~ see you sometime in the future. Loads of luck & happiness to a very sweet girl.

Dear Katherine,

I want to thank you for letting me use your desk for my books — as a means to escape "Clearance the Terrible." Gee — but you are a sweet gal — I'm sorry I don't have time to know you better. But, I have enjoyed our ^{few} casual talks in Cultural Heritage.

Love,
Deidre Henahan

Dearest Kathy:

Well, the time has finally arrived. Oh, aren't you relieved relieved? After so many years of burning the midnight oil, we've finally got a chance to relax. Of course, you don't have much time to relax since you're going to college.

I know you'll make good in college 'cause you're so smart. I hope you'll look me up one day and we'll go all go to the beach or something. I want to see Mary ~~off~~ before she goes to New York. My phone No. is Ea. 1533. Of course, I want to see you too. What are you planning to do during the summer. Are you still anxious to work at the library?

Best of luck to a real sweet girl and may you achieve nothing but happiness and success in the future.

I sure hope we can go swimming together some day.

P.S. Excuse the scribbling & mistakes please.

Love in All,
Nancy Mayers

I'll write below Nan's cause she's my friend, well, friend you're going to college (I pray) as soon (very soon) as we're through here. All there is to wish you...
